Soldier takes lead in three-peaks challenge to help Army charity

By NEIL DOCKING

A soldier is aiming to conquer Yorkshire's three peaks to raise money for the Army Benevolent Fund.

Dave Phoenix has organised a group of friends to help him tackle the 25-mile trek on Saturday.

They hope to raise around £2,000 for ABF The Soldiers' Charity, which is trying to increase its fundraising to £14million a year by 2015.

It needs to reach this figure to sustain the support it gives to serving, and retired, soldiers, and their families.

Having served his country for two decades in the Duke of Lancaster's 1st Battalion, touring countries such as Northern Ireland and Iraq, and now working as a recruitment officer at the Army careers office, in Yorkshire Street, Burnley, it is a cause close to Dave's heart.

The 39-year-old, of Highfield Road, Blackburn, said: "All my friends are coming back from Afghanistan, some having lost limbs.

"Some of the lads I have recruited here have been injured out there, so rather than sit by idly, I thought I should do something to assist them."

Dave will be joined on the challenge by Martin Ashton, John Marshall, Kevin Mawman, and James Foote, four regulars from The Griffin Pub, Redlam, Blackburn, and four others from aerospace firm BAE Systems. He said he was inspired by his father-in-law, Alan Yates, landlord of the pub, who is also hosting a raffle evening with prizes donated by local businesses on Saturday. To show your support, go along to the Griffin pub from 8pm.

Citizen In brief

New minister set to take up post

A new minister has been appointed at Nazareth Unitarian Chapel, in Padiham.
The Rev Jeffrey Gould is leaving Bury Unitarian Church, Bury, on October 10 to take up the post at the Church Street chapel. He will also give up his volunteer role as honorary chaplain of Bury Market and his position on the Manchester branch of the Council of Christians and Jews.
Mr Gould grew up in Boston, Massachusetts, and lived in San Francisco before moving to the UK 25 years ago.

Toilets revamp

Work on the revamp of the toilet block, in Padiham's Memorial Park, is set to be completed by the end of September, according to council leisure bosses.

Canalside walk

Barden Marina, Burnley, is hosting a walk along the canal as part of Pendle Walking Festival. The walk, on September 11, begins at 11am, and will take in part of the Pendle Way. The distance is around four miles, and is classed as 'easy'.

Market meets a growing trend

By PETE MAGILL

A market has returned to Barnoldswick for the first time in decades – thanks to an allotments boom.

The success of plots such as Coates Estate, and fledgling schemes for Greenberfield Lane and Cemetery Road, Earby, has led to a new market and exchange being set up at the town's Rainhall Centre.

Last Saturday marked the launch of the initiative, which centre bosses hope will lead to a 'green revolution' in West Craven.

Centre manager Ann Whittaker said: "It is the first time that we have attempted something like this and we hope the whole community will support us."

Allotment holders are not allowed to sell on their produce, but they exchange with like-minded market gardeners at the venture.

Home-grown wares can be sold and the centre will take 10per cent of the profits from traders to keep the market up and running.

Mrs Whittaker added: "Everything has to be home-grown. If a charity, or church group, wanted to have a stall then we would waive the 10per cent charge."

In future months, a series of horticultural and natural talks are planned for the gathering, which will take place on the last Saturday of every month, from 11am to 2pm, at the Rainhall Road venue.

For September, the focus will be on bee-keeping, and a lecture on handicrafts is planned for October as the exchange has a craft fair running alongside it.

Further events in the new year will concentrate on the merits of propagation.

Coun David Whipp, chairman of the centre's board, said: "We have had some contintental markets in Barnoldswick, but we have not had a proper market for decades.

"The intention is to service the growing number of allotment holders who grow a massive amount of fruit and vegetables and need somewhere to pass on their produce."

Thousands at blues festival

By JON LIVESEY

Thousands of music fans descended on Colne for the 21st annual Great British Rhythm and Blues Festival last weekend.

Stars including Dr Feelgood, The Hamsters and Eddie and The Hot Rods all took to the International Stage on opening night. And the second night proved just as big a hit, with all three of the main venues full to capacity.

Organisers hailed the festival a huge success. Chief organiser Alison Goode, of Pendle Leisure Trust, said: "It has been extremely successful. The International Stage was a sell-out on Friday and then the British Stage was really busy as well. It's definitely been busier than last year. The streets have been busy as well because of the weather."

On Saturday night the town had a party atmosphere, with hundreds of people lining the streets.

Having swapped flowers in her hair for a leather jacket and electric guitar, Sandi Thom kicked off the evening on the International Stage.

Playing to a sell-out crowd, she performed a set which included a blues version of her hit song I Wish I Was A Punk Rocker (With Flowers In My Hair), as well as House of the Rising Sun. On the British stage, up-and-coming blues star Chantel McGregor wowed the audience with her guitar skills, playing her own songs and finishing with a cover of the Jimi Hendrix classic Voodoo Chile. Chantel said: "The Chicago Acoustic Blues Session on Friday was absolutely superb and Sandi Thom was class."

The four-day event ended on Monday after young talent was showcased on the newly-introduced Jessica Foxley Stage, named after the 21-year-old singer who died in a car crash more than a year ago.

Here, they will meet the housekeeper who will talk about life at the hall in this period. The open day will run from 1pm to 5pm.

Songwriter earns first royalty notes

By LUCY MILLER

A young Burnley songwriter has taken her first steps towards becoming a professional musician after receiving her first royalty cheque.

Eighteen-year-old Lucy Zirins, of Lakeland Way, Burnley, joined an elite group of talented young songwriters for PRS for Music's first-ever 'Class of 2010' event.

The organisation supports the UK's most promising talents and will ensure they will be paid whenever their music is used.

This could be when music is used on a radio station, a TV programme, or advert, or any business using music they've created, such as shops and offices.

Lucy, who has just finished her A-levels, wrote her first song 'Where did you go' at the tender age of 13.

She started playing the guitar aged 12 and describes her sound as 'acoustic blues with a hint of jazz, gospel and folk'.

She said: "Music is my passion. There's nothing else like it in the world.

"Nothing else can express feelings like it does and it's the greatest feeling ever when you can pass those feelings on to the audience.

"It felt amazing to receive my first cheque from PRS for Music.

"It was amazing to have earned money for the thing I love doing most in the world."

Lucy performed last weekend as part of the Colne Blues Festival.

In November she will perform at the Carlisle Blues Festival, and will also be supporting her hero, blues singer Michael Messer, on his national tour.

She said: "Throughout my years in school and college I've played in a few bands, but mainly I've always played by myself."

She plans to use the money to buy music equipment to help her produce her first album.

Her MySpace page has attracted more than 27,000 visitors, and a fans page on Facebook has almost 400 members.

Homes plan at derelict mill

Plans to create new homes on a derelict mill site in Pendle will be considered by councillors next week.

Developers are seeking permission to build 55 new homes on the site of Lob Lane Mill, Brierfield.

The proposal will be discussed by Pendle Council's Brierfield and Reedley Committee on Tuesday. The derelict mill is owned by Pendle Council. The main mill warehouse and engine house would be retained and converted into 12 four-bedroom town houses. Nine would have the option of work spaces on the lower floor. The remaining buildings would be demolished to make way for 31 two and three-storey houses and 12 apartments.

Les' life rolling along brilliantly

Scottish pop band The Bay City Rollers became hugely popular in the seventies with their classic line-up, fronted by Les McKeown, with No 1 singles around the world. Bay City Rollers: The Greatest Hits is out now. We spoke to Les about the album and his well-documented ups and downs.

60 SECONDS WITH ...LES McKEOWN

DID YOU HELP COMPILE THE NEW BEST OF?
Yes, I had my input. It was all pretty obvious to tell you the truth. Shang-A-Lang is my favourite to sing, I think. It's like a Scottish national anthem.

DOES IT FEEL GOOD REVISITING THE SONGS?
Well it doesn't feel unusual any more because I'm totally engrossed in Bay City Rollers world again. Since I came out of my dark days two years ago, I've been promoting the Rollers again. I did a really popular touring show called Rollermania which had all the hits in it.

DO YOU FEEL A LOT HAPPIER NOW YOU'VE EMBRACED THE PAST?
Totally. I was drunk every day for 20 years, and was doing a lot of drugs, and then two years ago the proverbial hit the fan. I saw the doctor in the August and he said I wouldn't see that Christmas. To look at my drinking you'd definitely think I was trying to kill myself. I got myself rehabilitated and came out feeling much, much better. My whole life has changed. I feel absolutely great and work a lot. Working suits me, it's helped me through everything. Life is brilliant. I had no idea it could be this good.

THE VISIT TO THE DOCTOR WAS A REAL WAKE-UP CALL?
Yes. I think you have to hit rock bottom before you can come out of it. For the past three years, I haven't had a single depressing thought, it feels like I'm on a high all the time, but completely naturally!

Moving up a gear

FIRST SINGLE: Indie Pop musician Stephen Hudson

By singing about his girlfriend's old car and picking up dog dirt, Ribble Valley musician Stephen Hudson hopes to make his name in the music industry.

The 25-year-old singer, from Read, has just released his first solo single Tallulah? on Lancaster-based Indie record label Barnbox Records.

Following this, he hopes to have an album completed ready for release in the autumn.

Stephen, who describes his music as Indie Pop, says he likes to inject humour into his songs which are about everyday life. "My music is honest and full of humour. It's not what you might hear if you listen to the radio, but I'm hoping people will enjoy it.

"I'm not too bothered about being famous, but it would be nice to be recognised in the industry.

By JEMMA HUMPHREYS

It would be nice to be likened to Ray David, The Kinks, or Daniel Johnston, who are all people I love to listen to myself."

The former Clitheroe Grammar School pupil added: "I like to write about my experiences. Tallulah? is named after my girlfriend's old car and is a song about getting up and doing it.

"I have even written a song that talks about picking up dog dirt from the park amongst other things."

Community music co-ordinater Stephen, who now lives in Lancaster, hopes to tour the North of England following the album release.

● Tallulah? is available from Barnbox Records on www.barnbox.co.uk or on iTunes and Amazon.
